Shekinah Chronicles

Dawn in Jackson Square,
French Quarter, New Orleans.

Dawn and I started 2014 in Louisiana. We stayed the first five months in New Orleans on a very difficult mission assignment. New Orleans is one of the most interesting places in the United States. We spent hours a day on the streets in the French Quarter praying for people. There were many people who received physical and spiritual healings.

After our time in New Orleans, we spent several months throughout California. We helped extensively with a homeless ministry in the Palm Springs area. It is so amazing to see people who have no hope, peace, or joy in their lives receive the hope, peace, and joy Jesus has to offer. When they do, we see their lives begin to transform before our eyes.

Dawn and I also got trained in Global Disaster Relief. If there is a national or international disaster, Dawn and I might be asked to go and help the victims. For example, if a devastating hurricane happens somewhere, we may be deployed to the disaster site so we can help the people in need.

Our final months of 2014 were spent in Oregon. While in Oregon we have been assisting at an inner healing and deliverance ministry. People from all walks of life come to receive emotional, physical, and spiritual healing. We have met many people who have faced traumas so severe they are unable to move forward. It is amazing to see Jesus set them free.
